Know a high school junior or senior who’s really wired? The go-to geek when something won’t work, run, boot up or connect? Here’s their chance to spend four days and nights toe-to-toe with other tech monsters. TechJam 2012 at Sullivan College of Technology and Design is an onsite, hands-on, all-in mashup designed to push their tech skills faster and farther than they’ve ever gone before. During the day, they’ll roll up their sleeves and tear into one of two challenging tech tracks. In the evening, they’ll experience college social life at Gardiner Point, Sullivan’s “you have to see it to believe it” residence hall.

Find out more at techjam2012.com.