"Spencerian College was the site for a Halloweening good time A hundred little ghosts and goblins descended on Spencerian and enjoyed decorated doors and trick-or-treatings. The Spencerian Activities Board invited students, staff, and instructors to sign up to bring their kiddos for a safe trick-or-treat. The price of admission was a nice-size bag of candy for every one or two children participating. The general population at the College could also dress down that Thursday if they brought $2 or a bag of candy. Several rooms were decorated for a contest held earlier that day, and the costumed children enjoyed each door. There was absolutely no worthwhile goal in mind except to have fun and accumulate large amounts of candy.

Everyone had fun at Spencerian's Carnival!

Smash a pie in the face of your favorite program director or instructor; dunk a dean or your favorite clinical coordinator. Play a game and win a prize. Have your face painted. Or, eat way too many hamburgers, hot dogs, and bags of popcorn. Where? At the Kentucky State Fair? No, it was at the Spencerian Carnival! Last quarter Spencerian College took a break to enjoy some fun and games for good causes. The Career Services Department raised money at the pie-throwing booth to help pay the overseas postage for items they are collecting for the soldier which they have adopted in Afghanistan. The Respiratory Therapy Department earned some money from the Plinko game to help the Boys and Girls Haven. Each department had at least one booth and everyone seemed to enjoy an afternoon at the Carnival.
