Graduating class sets new record!
608 graduates - largest class in University history!

On April 24, 2004, more than 4,000 people filled the immense sanctuary at Southeast Christian Church in Louisville, Kentucky and watched with pride and happiness as the largest graduating class in Sullivan University’s history made their traditional procession. Smiles and cameras flashed as hundreds of graduates, from Sullivan’s Louisville, Lexington and Fort Knox campuses, crossed the stage to receive certificates, diplomas, associate’s, bachelor’s and master’s degrees from Kentucky’s largest independent university.

Sullivan University’s unique year-round quarter schedule produces graduates in September, December, March and June and recognizes their achievements in two formal graduation ceremonies.

Sullivan faculty go to school, too!

Several weeks ago, Sullivan University’s entire full-time faculty gathered for an educational retreat on a warm Friday and Saturday in French Lick, Indiana.

During this event, more than 120 faculty shared ideas with each other and University leaders on the University’s long range Quality Enhancement Plan.

The faculty, divided into small groups, each took a different challenge and emerged with ideas and solutions to enhance learning and student success. These ideas were later shared with the entire faculty as a group and discussed in University departmental meetings.

Comments heard from faculty about this weekend included “I didn’t realize the three campuses of Sullivan had so many full time faculty” to “I enjoyed spending more extended time with others in my department” to “there were some really good concepts shared that we will adopt.”

Sullivan faculty share the passion of students to succeed and provide meaningful educational experiences. Recent programming included a pool party/picnic, a stress management class, a relationship building seminar, attending a Louisville Bats baseball game, and watching a movie at Stony Brook Cinemas. Upcoming events are bowling and Laser Tag.

Housing & Residence Life at Sullivan breaks the mold! If you think student housing is a cinder block construction that breaks the mold! If you think student housing is a cinder block construction then Sullivan Housing is a cinder block construction! Housing & Residence Life at Sullivan University believes that college should be a memorable experience. Sullivan provides student with fully-furnished apartments located in the heart of Jeffersonville, where many of Louisville’s popular restaurants and shopping centers reside.

Amenities include a swimming pool, paid utilities, a fitness center, and access to a shuttle bus to and from school.

Housing is your new home! Sullivan wants students to feel comfortable with their new homes so on move-in day students find a laundry basket filled with goodies to welcome them to their new home. In the baskets, students find individual snacks, carpet cleaner, light bulbs, detergent, dishwashing liquid, and more. As an added special touch, each refrigerator is filled with beverages.

Sullivan kicked mundane programming to the curb! Sullivan seeks to create positive social interaction among students and faculty, providing opportunities for students to develop leadership skills and to contribute to the creation of a more engaged community.

Sullivan’s student housing gets an A+

Gone are the days of students surviving college by living in a 12x13 room! Housing & Residence Life at Sullivan University guarantees that once continuous attendance, their tuition will not increase all the way through the completion of a bachelor’s degree!
