Sullivan's student activities rock!
New website keeps students connected to all events

Walking down Sullivan's hallways you can see posters highlighting the great activities and events geared towards students and the campus community. Now students have a brand new website, designed with them in mind, with an easy navigation structure, design and layout. Students can click on the student activities calendar and discover what's going on, and register for events under the “Get Involved” tab. Events can even be synchronized with students' Outlook calendars and photos can be shared through our Flickr photo gallery. Sullivan University provides a broad variety of activities and programs to assist students in participating in the Sullivan community and in developing skills and knowledge of leadership, wellness and diversity.

The new site can be found at sullivan.edu/student-activities and links to Sullivan’s Twitter, YouTube, Flickr and Facebook pages are located in the upper right hand corner of every page. Page 12 highlights events students have enjoyed.

LOOK WHAT’S NEXT!
Students just click away!
sullivan.edu/student-activities

Career Expo was huge success

Career Services sponsors Career Expo in the spring and one in the fall. There are incredible opportunities for alumni and students to meet prospective employers and discuss career options. The fall career event was no exception, employers came ready to hire Sullivan alumni and current students.

Great employer turnout

More than 50 prominent companies attended including Louisville Metro Government, Louisville Department of Education, Yamaha, Verizon Wireless, J.P. Morgan Chase, Google, Travelers, and numerous others. Good news for grads and students

Several employers had multiple positions to fill and their feedback was positive. “I think the Expo was very beneficial; we have four to six interviews scheduled in addition to one definite hire,” stated Teksys recruiters. Aerotek’s representative said “We scheduled 7-10 interviews, several possibly for internal opportunities.”

Announcing new concentration in Sullivan’s doctoral program

Sullivan’s new Ph.D. in Management program began last fall (see The Herald, Winter 2011) with three concentration areas: Strategic Management, Information Technology, and Conflict Management. Sullivan University has offered programs in Human Resource Leadership (HRL) at both the undergraduate and master’s levels, which have been, and continue to be, very popular with those interested in a career in human resources.

Why are students attracted to Sullivan’s HRL programs?

Recent statistics outlined by the Bureau of Labor Statistics (BLS) in their Occupational Outlook Handbook, 2010-2011 have projected a 22% increase in HR jobs between 2008 and 2018, “much faster than the average for all occupations.”

Just like the other concentrations in the doctoral program, the HRL track will include: High-Performance Human Resource Leadership, Workforce Analytics and Technology, Contemporary Issues, and Directed Readings in HR Leadership. Interested students may expect the new concentration to commence during the upcoming Winter 2012 term. The addition of this new area of specialization will give Sullivan University yet another way to meet the specific learning interests and needs of both current and new students.

If you are interested in learning more about the HRL concentration in the PhD program, you can contact Dr. Teresa A. Daniel, Dean, Human Resource Leadership Programs at taniel@sullivan.edu. In her own words, “strong leadership and the strategic management of issues related to human capital are what fuel organizational success” and she would like to share her passion for HRL-related courses and issues with interested current and potential students.

Sullivan is first in the nation!

Master’s in Conflict Management student Janice Carter has started a Kentucky chapter of the International Association of Facilitators (IAF) on Sullivan University’s main campus. Sullivan is the only educational institution in the United States to house a chapter of this prestigious organization dedicated to the growth of facilitators world-wide.

Coinciding with Conflict Resolution Day on October 20, an inaugural meeting was held on campus at Winston’s Restaurant. Many students attended and received information about what the IAF does and about conflict management services in general. Several professionals in the field also attended and shared information on productively managing conflicts.

There were several videos shown, including a welcome appearance by Kim Bunker, President, Association for Conflict Resolution (ACR). Dr. Cynthia Paca, “The Leadership Guru,” was the guest speaker. She also engaged the attendees in an entertaining and insightful hands-on activity.

ANNOUNCING NEW CONCENTRATION IN SULLIVAN’S DOCTORAL PROGRAM

Sullivan University's new Ph.D. in Management program began last fall with three concentration areas: Strategic Management, Information Technology, and Conflict Management. Sullivan University has offered programs in Human Resource Leadership (HRL) at both the undergraduate and master's levels, which have been, and continue to be, very popular with those interested in a career in human resources.

Why are students attracted to Sullivan’s HRL programs?

Recent statistics outlined by the Bureau of Labor Statistics (BLS) in their Occupational Outlook Handbook, 2010-2011 have projected a 22% increase in HR jobs between 2008 and 2018, “much faster than the average for all occupations.”

Just like the other concentrations in the doctoral program, the HRL track will include: High-Performance Human Resource Leadership, Workforce Analytics and Technology, Contemporary Issues, and Directed Readings in HR Leadership. Interested students may expect the new concentration to commence during the upcoming Winter 2012 term. The addition of this new area of specialization will give Sullivan University yet another way to meet the specific learning interests and needs of both current and new students.

If you are interested in learning more about the HRL concentration in the PhD program, you can contact Dr. Teresa A. Daniel, Dean, Human Resource Leadership Programs at taniel@sullivan.edu. In her own words, “strong leadership and the strategic management of issues related to human capital are what fuel organizational success” and she would like to share her passion for HRL-related courses and issues with interested current and potential students.